Mrs. Cornelia Anderson

Mrs. Cornelia Ann Anderson, widow of Edward Lawrence Anderson, died June 4, at her home near Vera after an illness of two weeks. She was born September 30, 1852. Mr. Anderson died about 30 years ago.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Elina Crabtree, of Taxwell; a son, Richard A. Anderson, Vera; a sister, Mrs. Bettie L. Megginson, of Lynchburg; a brother, J. W. Lewis, of Prospect, and a half brother, Charles E. Lewis, of Vera.

The funeral was conducted June 5 at 3:30 P. M. by the Rev. O. G. Burnett, at the home and burial was in the family cemetery. Pallbearers were nephews: Edward Lewis, John Lewis, Jimmie Lewis, Moss Lewis, Charles D. Lewis and J. W. Harvey Jr.

The many lovely flowers were carried by neices of Mrs. Anderson and a wreath was carried by Floyd Christian, who had belonge dto Mrs. Anderson's parents.

The women of the woman's missionary union attended the funeral in a body.

Mrs. Anderson had been an active member of Liberty Chapel church since early girlhood and was treasurer of the womans' missionary society for about fifty years. Hers had been a beautiful Christian life and all who knew her loved her, and not one but could recall some act of kindness she had done for them.

"She loves someone who did a kindly deed,
Who proved herself a friend in need,
Someone who said 'Tis sweet to live
Someone who said If I glad to give'
Someone who fought a valiant fight,
Someone who lived to shield the right."

And so on June 4, 1936, she heard her Master say, "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

Price Given Ovation At Convention

(By C. H. Robinson)

Convention Hall, Norfolk, Va., June 16.- There is nothing more misleading that the shouting, braying, clapping, stamping and yelling of a mess of people at a political convention. It's like suddenly opening a hen house door.

Right now, (12:30) this convention of Virginia Democrats is going wild in a demonstration for "Jim" Price for governor. Murray Hooker can't get order. William Bullet Fitzhugh waves vainly a gold headed cane the Virginia press association once gave him. Carter Glass asks for order, but he might as well be asking Roosevelt to balance the budget. And the tumult continues until Price comes up and takes a bow.

The big question here is: Will the "organization" HAVE to support Price for governor?

I don't think so. Maybe so, but not because it HAS TO or because of this demonstration.

Half an hour ago, I was in the lobby of the Monticello Hotel and saw the beginning of th's demonstration. About eight joyeous 3rd district men trouped down the steps to the lobby singing "My Wild Irish Rose." They saw Vivian Page and draped him with a ten gallon hat. They yelled and whooped for Price and demanded a speech of Vivian. He rose to the occasion with this: "Gentlemen, the keynote of the convention, Peery, Price and Page." Later someone added another "P" and made it: Pollard, Peery, Price and Page. With that they all marched to the street and called for Price in a din that got the 3rd district started. You know how a crowd picks up an idea, and soon it seemed that half the convention was for Price and nobody else.

That's how I figure the Price demonstration. But.... around the lobbies, on the streets, in their room wherever you corner delegates and talk with them, you find, or at least this observer finds, this: Wait until after November before committing yourself for governor. So I believe that whether or not Jim Price gets to be governor depends on whether or not he gets support from the "organization" now headed by Harry Flood Byrd.

Price "Isn't in yet".

Joel H Harvey

Joel H. Harvey, aged twenty nine died in Richmond at the home of his mother, Mrs. T. J. Harvey, on last Thursday, June 11, after a long illness. His remains were brought here and interred in the family cemetery at Rose Bower where a host of relatives and friends gathered to pay their last respects.

Mr. Harvey had been in the employ of the Noland Hardware Co. in Washington for the past seven years. Representatives of this company acted as pallbearers and as flower bearers.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Bernie Johnson Harvey, and one five year old daughter, Joyce Anne; one sister, Mrs. Eva Hayden, of Richmond; two brothers, T. C. Harvey of Appomattox, and John T. Harvey, of Washington; and his mother, Mrs. T. J. Harvey, of Richmond.

MRS COLEMAN PRAISED

Mrs. W. P. Coleman, chairman for Appomattox county for the Virginia Tuberculosis Association, has received a letter of congratulation from the state executive secretary for having reached the county goal in the Christmas seal sale, and thus helping Virginia to be one of the thirteen states exceeding its quota.

Woodrum keynotes at state Democratic convention at Norfolk.

VET BREAKS LEG

Chauncey C. ('Dick') Ferguson, said to be the oldest white man in Appomattox county, and veteran of the War Between the States, fell and suffered a broken leg Tuesday. His condition is reported critical.

Phyllis Ann Robertson

The funeral for Phyllis Ann Robertson five year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Robertson, who died at her home in Roanoke, was conducted Sunday afternoon at the home of her grandparents, in Appomattox. Flower bearers were Joyce and Juanita Robertson, Majorie and Bertha Miller Roberts and Irvin Robertson, Elizabeth and Jacqueline Megginson, Annie Emma and Rachel Robertson, Nadine Kyle, Ruby and Hazel Coleman, Dicky Robertson, Margaret Hatcher, Mrs. Wilson Scruggs, Mrs. Mae Witt, Mrs. D. He gave an interesting demonstration in leather craft. The class in leather craft at Lee Grant is being taught by Joseph E. Oliver, foreman. The interest has been so great he has been forced to divide the class into two sections.

Stone pillars at the camp entrance have been completed, along with additional planting of flowers, which were secured with the cooperation of the Appomattox Garden Club.

Recent rain has greatly improved the camp garden, one of the educational projects. Its objective is to provide opportunity for actual gardening experience.
